

Dear Envelope Money Applicant,

Envelope Money has carefully reviewed your information and, unfortunately, we are unable to approve your Envelope Money card application at this time. As you can imagine, FinTech are required to evaluate new customers for risk.

Based on your application or information connected to your application, Envelope Money chose to decline your application for an account. The review process evaluates numerous data sources, so the reason for the decline could be one or more of the following; the inability to verify your identity based on the information you provided, missing or incorrect documentation, a particularly high risk type of business, limited time in business, a prohibited type of business or information provided from 3rd party vendors.

We know you were hoping to be approved and that you put time into the application. We apologize we cannot move forward with you onboarding you on Envelope Money.

If you have any questions, please reach out to admin@envelopemoney.com.

Thank you,
Envelope Money Team
